

What Upstanding Citizens Believe Vs. What Crazy Conspiracy Theorists Believe

Published January 28, 2022

This was prepared by me, Roger Golden Brown, and can be found here, along with lots of material related to the ongoing Global Coup here on my website.

This is an edited version of a January 2, 2020 article by Caitlin Johnstone. Her writing is clever and gets to the heart of the absurdity of denigrating anyone who thinks for themselves. It has been trimmed down, deleting specific references to United States' foreign policies and actions. Replace U.S government references with government and medical Authorities and what's left is well said about the blind compliance with the Covid narrative. (The only change made to her text is switching out of Mike Pompeo.)

What Upstanding Citizens Believe Vs. What Crazy Conspiracy Theorists Believe

Crazy, stupid conspiracy theorists believe a mature worldview requires skepticism toward power.

Smart upstanding citizens believe the government is your friend, and the media are its helpers.

Crazy, stupid conspiracy theorists believe that powerful people sometimes make immoral plans in secret.

Smart upstanding citizens believe the TV always tells the truth and the CIA exists for no reason.

Crazy, stupid conspiracy theorists believe that extreme government secrecy makes it necessary to discuss possible theories about what might be going on behind that veil of opacity.

Smart upstanding citizens believe that just because a world-dominating government with the most powerful military in the history of civilization has no transparency and zero accountability to the public, that doesn't mean you've got to get all paranoid about it.

Crazy, stupid conspiracy theorists believe it's okay to ask questions about important events that happen in the world, even if their government tells them they shouldn't.

Smart upstanding citizens believe everything they need to know about reality comes out of ~~Mike Pompeo's~~ Anthony Fauci's angelic mouth.

Crazy, stupid conspiracy theorists believe the very rich sometimes engage in nefarious behavior to expand their wealth and power.

Smart upstanding citizens believe billionaires always conduct themselves with the same values that got them their billions in the first place: honesty, morality, and generosity.

Crazy, stupid conspiracy theorists believe that it can be difficult to figure out what's going on in a mass media landscape that is saturated with the propaganda of the US-centralized empire.

Smart upstanding citizens believe that all you need to do to ensure you're getting all the facts is watch television and run screaming from the room if you accidentally flip past RT.

Crazy, stupid conspiracy theorists believe that the billionaire class which owns the mass media has a natural incentive to prop up the status quo upon which it is built, and so construct an environment where reporters are incentivized to always support the establishment line.

Smart upstanding citizens believe that if that kind of conspiracy were really happening, it would have been in the news.
