

Covid Vaccine Informed Consent Checklist

It's critical for anyone administering the Covid vaccine that they fully inform everyone who thinks they want to get it. These novel vaccines are a new technology and require more than usual information to adequately inform people. This applies to the vaccines made by Moderna, Pfizer, Johnson & Johnson and Astra Zeneca.

An informed consent would include at least this information:

- The vaccine was not FDA approved when it was first released.
- The vaccine has been developed and tested in less than a year; most vaccines take 5, 10, or even 15 years before they go on the market.
- One of the reasons that vaccines take so long to bring to market is that there is no way to know what long term effects they may have except to wait and see.
- The vaccine is not like any other vaccine in that it is not dosing you with an antigen, a small dose of the disease to build immunity.
- The vaccine uses a technology that has never before been used on people; it is designed to introduce genetic material into your body to trick it into making a "spike protein" with the intent that your body will then develop an immune reaction to the SARS-CoV-2 virus.
- All the vaccine companies have total indemnity; they cannot be sued or held to account for any issues arising from the use of their vaccines.
- No one knows all of what is actually in the vaccines, as it is kept hidden as proprietary technology.
- Until a judge forced Pfizer to publish the results of their tests, Pfizer and the FDA wanted to keep those results sealed for 75 years.
- People should be encouraged to check out Pfizer's test results, in particular, pages 30 - 39, Appendix 1. List of Adverse Events of Special Interest.

- Finally, people should be informed of the VAERS (Vaccine Adverse Event Reporting System) database and be encouraged to check what has been reported by others taking the vaccines:
