The Aquarian Age and World Affairs

I believe in the Aquarian Age. I do believe we are at the dawning of the Age of Aquarius. I see the way so many parents are with their children and I see love manifest in the way people are and I see the change. Strangely, I even see it in the way people are buying the communitarianism the globalists are selling; their appeal to act for the greater good.

Maybe it's always been clear if one expanded their world view, but I, for too long, was able to keep the shenanigans of the evil minority - the war makers, the money changers, the money grubbers, the technocrats, most of the law makers, and the manipulating propagandists - pushed into a corner of my consciousness. I didn't see it directly affecting my life, or least not so much that I couldn't work around it.

Then there was Covid. The evil minority made their play, having laid their groundwork while good people, like me, allowed them the space to do so.

Now it is clear to me that the Age of Aquarius, the "harmony and understanding", will not be possible until the evil doers have been emasculated; rendered impotent and in many cases separated permanently from society.

One thing that surprised me a bit as I became a pretty savvy investigator was that "they" tell and have for some time been telling us what their intentions regarding controlling the freedom of others are. I have a friend who told me that he believes there is a cosmic law that they are required to tell you what they are going to do.

I have also heard it suggested that part of the psychology of the psychopath (which these people are) is that if they announce what they are going to do and there is no big pushback, they take that as permission.

This is war. And it makes sense that the final (I hope and believe) world war will be a psychological war to cleanse the Earth and to usher in the Aquarian Age.

This is a spiritual war.

We have evil doers - wanting to control pretty much everything everybody does, curiously, using scientific inventions, electricity, innovation and technology, all Aquarian in nature.

We have good - the vast majority. However, the majority of that majority has relinquished their will. They have chosen to disengage.

Because of that the evil doers are succeeding in controlling the free will of many of the good. And while those evil doers are physically manifesting control over others in many respects, much of their shaping how the world works in the way they want it to, is actually manifested simply by mass compliance.

The good who have disengaged have allowed themselves to narrow their world view. They have allowed their emotions to dominate; their good minds subordinated. Their emotions have been stimulated and their good minds have been suppressed. The balance has been lost. This has allowed them to be manipulated and the world view they consume through media, having been cultivated for their consumption, unfortunately, has almost nothing to do with reality.

Bringing in the Age of Aquarius doesn't mean that the world will be perfect, and doesn't mean that the world is free of conflict, but it means that people are, to a greater extent, allowing each other to relax and expand; to be out of the survival mode that those who have been manifesting control over us have put us in.

Yes, this is a spiritual war, but it is not a war between good and great evil; it is a war between good and a myriad small evils. This is where we have to look at that aspect of spirituality that is often overlooked; people must be engaged and completely honest about allowing themselves to face reality. Resistance to the uncomfortable and challenging must be overcome, let go. Reality is synonymous with power.

I remind people. Evil is not the opposite of good. Evil is the lack of good. Each of us contain some parts of us not in perfect harmony. Among those lesser evils are fear and denial. And now it seems that many people are exercising willful ignorance which manifests in compliance with the world that is imposed on them, which paradoxically enables that greater evil, giving the evil doers tacit permission to continue doing what they are doing.

I wish I could end this short dissertation with suggestions as to how to reach those in resistance but the persistence of the stubbornness, now after 4 years of insanity since the rollout of Covid, baffles me. For me personally, it's alien to resist information, so I just don't get it.

It seems like we, most of humanity, as a race of basically good people, who just want to live and laugh and create, must act; it's part of life. I think since they made their play with Covid the option to just hope we have enough limited freedom to live comfortably, outside of the constraints of political and technological impositions, is gone. And I think the belief that somehow good will out without us having to do anything on the physical plane to help bring that about has been shown to be fanciful.

I just don't know. I'm open to suggestions (literally - comments are welcome) as to how this spiritual war, this call for the engagement of humanity in our future, can be effectively carried out.

Final thought. I know down to my bones that love and harmony will prevail ultimately; the question is how much more destruction and consequent suffering will we need endure, that could be avoided by the overwhelmingly good majority of humanity engaging consciously in this spiritual war.
