

Capitalism vs. Socialism - A False Construct

Reflections on the trap and why we need both but without using either word.

Roger Golden Brown

Published September 11, 2024

Find this PDF here and lots more Global Coup related material on my Quasar website.

And check out my Author Page for all of my published books - this includes paperbacks and ebooks. The content of the paperbacks reflect my truer inner self, predating my current seemingly necessary focus on world affairs. The ebooks include four Free world affairs oriented titles.

Capitalism vs. Socialism - A False Construct

A few nights ago I watched Patrick Wood's testimony for Reiner Fuellmich's Grand Jury proceedings. One of his points that he made was that they (the technocrats) want to replace capitalism with "sustainable goals".

I have written favorably about Socialism while cautioning against the lean towards communism. Now in light of Patrick Wood's ideas, though I still believe the creating of a wealthy controlling elite is built into anything resembling capitalism, I think if we drop the word, along with words like Free Market and such, we can try and get past any kind of mode that is legislated.

And work towards a natural trade (be it goods or services, with or without a currency interface) version of the C-word, coupled with a natural respect for the well being of the less fortunate and contributing to the community without it being the S-word.

See two other of my articles on the subject, both found here on my website:

Socialism or Fascism

Communism, The Inevitable Result of Capitalism?